

DECKOS - PIGMENT AND PARADOX PRESENTS

MUTANT PIGS: SIGNALS ON THE ICE

CHAPTER SEVEN - THE RULE NOBODY RECEIVED

Before the WGS - Season One Illustrated Guide

Keep your anger. Lose the claim. Return tomorrow.

The goal disappears. The game must choose tomorrow.

The championship qualifier ends at the exact instant the replay system loses its final frame. Crimson claims the bearing crossed before the horn. Blue claims it did not. Every surviving record supports an argument, but none can establish a winner.

Team chants collapse into old herd cries. Players square off, supporters press toward the railings, and Basin Twelve comes within seconds of becoming a battlefield again.

The official refuses to invent a result. An open circle nullifies both victory claims and creates the Common Ice Rule: no victory counts if the game cannot continue tomorrow. At the next shift, both teams replay the qualifier from the opening faceoff.

MP-063 - RETURN TOMORROW

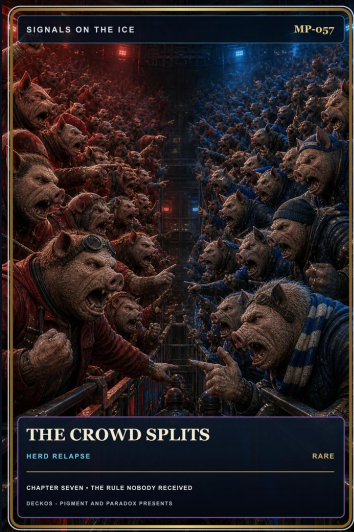

The vanished goal, the double claim, and the breaking point

MP-055

MP-056

MP-057

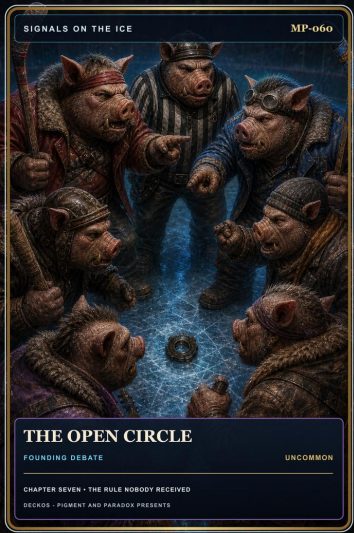

MP-058

MP-059

The debate, the rule, and tomorrow's game

MP-060

MP-061

MP-062

MP-063